Dear Blythe

I do sincerely hope you will have no more quarrels with Governors, tho' you have hitherto come off so well. Mr. Milnes I do not know, but hear him well spoken of. Genl. Hunter is a worthy man & a good officer. I know nothing very remarkable that has lately happened to any of your friends.

I am Dear Sir
Ever Yours
Wm. Grant

Wm. Goode Esq
Chief Justice of Lower Canada

Lubbe

Perhaps the most perfect model of judicial eloquence was that of Sir Wm Grant in decomposing and analysing an immense amount of confused and contradictory matter, and forming clear and unquestionable results, the sight of his mind was infinite.

Never was the merit of Dr Johnson's definition of a perfect style "proper words in proper places," more sensibly felt than by those who listened to Sir Wm Grant.

Chas. Butler (Communicances).
